

3/6/2015

To all our distributor partners,

This past Sunday, 60 Minutes and Anderson Cooper aired a segment about Lumber Liquidators, and the possible health concerns from laminate flooring produced in China with high levels of formaldehyde. While this situation is focused on the laminate industry, it opened up calls concerning formaldehyde emissions. Baltic Wood is concerned about formaldehyde emissions, and indoor air quality. We have achieved a Class E1 certificate, signifying that we have exceptionally high standards for these emissions. Additionally all our products are produced in our plant in Jaslo, Poland where we hold ISO 9001 and ISO 14001 certificates. If you have any questions or concerns about formaldehyde emissions please feel free to contact me.

Sincerely,

Bert Culbertson

Sales Director

Baltic Wood USA

bert.culbertson@balticwoodusa.com